3. Plan, etc. After the Tender Offer and Future Outlook

(1) Plan after the Tender Offer

As the Company intends to make Nisca a wholly-owned subsidiary as announced in the press release “Announcement of Commencement of Tender Offer for Shares of Nisca Corporation (Listed Subsidiary of Tender Offeror)” on February 1, 2008 and the Company failed to acquire all of the outstanding shares of common stock issued by Nisca through the Tender Offer, the Company plans to implement a share exchange (kabushiki-koukan) whereby Nisca will become a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company (including but not limited to a share exchange whereby money, etc. is delivered in exchange for the Target Company’s shares; the “Share Exchange”). It is possible, however, that the Company will take other measures to the same effect, instead of the Share Exchange, to acquire all of the issued shares of Nisca (hereinafter collectively, including the Share Exchange, referred to as the “Second Process”) depending upon, among others, the competent authorities’ interpretation of related laws and regulations, and filing/disclosure requirements under the US securities laws.

The Company plans to implement the Share Exchange, which would fall under the category of a summary share exchange (kan’i-kabushiki-koukan) as provided in Article 796, Paragraph 3 of the Companies Act, without obtaining the approval of the Company’s shareholders’ meeting.

Also, Nisca plans to implement the Share Exchange, which would fall under the category of a short form share exchange (ryakushiki-kabushiki-koukan) as provided in Article 784, Paragraph 1 of the Companies Act, without obtaining the approval of its shareholders’ meeting.

Although the number/amount of shares or money, etc. to be delivered in connection with the Second Process has not been decided, the economic value of Nisca’s shares for the purpose of determining such number/amount of shares or money, etc. is expected to be calculated based upon the offer price in the Tender Offer, in principle. However, such economic value can be different from the offer price due to such special factors as changes in the circumstances surrounding Nisca’s business, fluctuations in the stock markets and fluctuations in the results of the operations of the Company and Nisca. Under certain circumstances, shareholders of Nisca may have the appraisal right pursuant to applicable laws; which price may differ from the offer price in the Tender Offer or the economic value which Nisca's shareholders receive in connection with the Second Process. The shareholders of Nisca are kindly requested to consult with their tax advisors with respect to tax-related matters in connection with the Tender Offer, the Second Process and exercise of the appraisal right in the Second Process.

The Company will announce the timing and methods of the Second Process promptly after they are determined upon consultation with Nisca.

The shares of common stock of Nisca are expected to be delisted by implementation of the Second Process following the prescribed procedures, pursuant to the delisting criteria of Jasdac Securities Exchange, Inc.

- (2) The Impact of the Tender Offer on the Business Performance of the Company
The impact of the Tender Offer on the Company's forecast of its business performance for the fiscal year ending December 2008 will be announced promptly after it becomes available.
